Biomedical Science

Biomedical Science explores the biological and chemical processes within the human body that influence health and disease. It integrates disciplines like biology, chemistry, and medicine to understand disease mechanisms, develop diagnostics, and explore treatments. Biomedical scientists work primarily in laboratories, contributing to medical research, diagnostics, and the advancement of healthcare.

University	Country	Degree Offered	Entry Requirements	Application Process	Special Conditions/Notes
Queen's University Belfast	Northern Ireland	BSc Biomedical Science	A-Level: BBB (including Biology and Chemistry)	UCAS	Interview not required; relevant work experience advantageous.
Ulster University	Northern Ireland	BSc Biomedical Science	A-Level: BBC (including Biology and Chemistry)	UCAS	Interview not required; practical experience recommended.
University College Dublin (UCD)	Ireland	BSc Biomedical Health and Life Sciences	Irish Leaving Cert: H2 in Chemistry and Biology	CAO	Interview not required; relevant experience recommended.
Trinity College Dublin (TCD)	Ireland	BSc Human Health and Disease	Irish Leaving Cert: H3 in Chemistry, Biology, and one other science	CAO	Interview not required; work experience advantageous.
University of Manchester	UK	BSc Biomedical Science	A-Level: AAB (including Biology and Chemistry)	UCAS	No interview required; relevant experience recommended.
University of Glasgow	UK	BSc Biomedical Science	A-Level: AAB (including Biology and Chemistry)	UCAS	No interview required; relevant work experience recommended.
University of Edinburgh	UK	BSc Biomedical Sciences	A-Level: AAA (including Biology and Chemistry)	UCAS	No interview required; relevant experience advantageous.
University of Nottingham	UK	BSc Biomedical Science	A-Level: AAB (including Biology and Chemistry)	UCAS	No interview required; relevant experience recommended.
University of Birmingham	UK	BSc Biomedical Science	A-Level: AAB (including Biology and Chemistry)	UCAS	No interview required; practical experience recommended.
University of Leeds	UK	BSc Biomedical Science	A-Level: AAB (including Biology and Chemistry)	UCAS	No interview required; relevant experience recommended.
